The Challenge of Finding Quality:

The Place of the Reggio Emilia Approach in the National Quality Reform

Catharine Hydon is an experienced early childhood professional with extensive experience in a broad range of early childhood settings. She draws on her work with educators, children and families, and her Masters studies, to inspire those wishing to explore excellence in early childhood service provision. Catharine is best known as a strong advocate for professionalism, ethical practice and as a facilitator of pedagogical leadership. Catharine will explore the Reggio Emilia Approach in the context of Australia's National Quality Reform. (Non-Members $10)
